

MATSUI, WORLD RACER, ARRIVES HERE TODAY

Tug and Auto Will Rush Him to Hadley Field for Flight Across Continent.

Ryukichi Matsui, westbound contestant in the round-the-world race arranged by the Japanese newspaper Jiji Shimpō, is on board the Cunard liner Aquitania, which arrives in New York today. He is twenty-three days out from Tokio, where the race started, and has traveled through Mukden, Moscow, Berlin, Paris and London. His rival, Toichi Araki, who passed through New York about a fortnight ago, traveling in the opposite direction, was last reported, on April 28, at Moscow.

To have a chance of winning the race Matsui must catch the President Lincoln, due to sail from Victoria tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock. Authority has been obtained from the State Department for him to be taken off the ship at Quarantine, whence he will be rushed in a special tug to Elizabeth, N. J. From there he will motor to Hadley Field, New Brunswick, N. J., to fly across the country by mail plane.

The New York Times

Published: May 4, 1928

Copyright © The New York Times